The mission of School of Continuing and Professional Education is to provide quality continuing education for professional practice, retraining and self-development which anticipates and responds to community needs and the effects, of social and technological changes. The continuing and professional education programme is one of the most important channels by which the City University of Hong Kong can offer access to its human, physical and technological resources for the advancement of society. The School is committed to freedom of enquiry and the pursuit of excellence in teaching and to interaction with the community.
Message
from Director
Some of you may have noticed that for our 20th Anniversary, we have been using the slogan: Celebrating 20 years in Engagement in Lifelong Learning. We have come a long way in twenty years.

I have witnessed the impact of lifelong learning on the lives of people first hand and at close range. It is not merely a concept. Many participants in our programmes who are working adults have achieved academic success through part-time studies with the School. They are successful practitioners of lifelong learners.

- They committed themselves to a substantial learning project and were able to see it through to completion. This improves their self-confidence in future learning projects.
- They have developed the study skills necessary for the next qualification level, to do research in their own specialty and be successful in coping with different kinds of assessment methodologies designed to evaluate the intended outcomes of the programmes.
- They have developed the ability to manage work and study at the same time, each becoming more demanding with the passage of time.

These are important and critical attributes to possess in this age of a fast changing world and globalised economy. As a provider, we are happy to see the active and successful engagement in lifelong education by learners. Sometimes we worry whether they can cope with such heavy demands but more usual than not most participants are able to cope after one semester’s work and are able to create a natural rhythm of work and study after two semesters. This gives us the confidence to continue to offer programmes which are demanding and of high quality. Apart from being sensitive to the habits, situations and the surroundings of our learners, we also have to ensure that the programmes that we offer are relevant and meaningful in terms of intellectual development and career progression. Serving the needs of the learners in such a way is the provider’s way to be engagement of being engaged in lifelong education.

When learners complete their programmes, many participants share a sense of elation, achievement and satisfaction about themselves. Interestingly, those of us working in lifelong education have very similar feelings but the reward is from the angle of seeing so many learners achieved growth and transformation.

Thus lifelong learning has blossomed from a concept to become a way of life or lifestyle for many people. We used to wonder there will be a system of lifelong education like it is with formal education where it is largely the responsibility of the government. We now see lifelong learning as a phenomenon of our times spurred on by the needs of contemporary society. What most people do not know is that those of us who are engaged in this line of work have found it to be a very gratifying experience as well. It has been a privilege to be engaged with lifelong learning for the past 20 years.

Charles K H WONG, Hon DEd, MH
Director
School of Continuing and Professional Education (SCOPE)
City University of Hong Kong
With nearly 20 years of experience in providing part-time overseas degree programmes in Hong Kong, SCOPE fully understands the needs of participants and the difficulties they encounter, and provides academic and administrative support to facilitate their studies.

The PsyD programme has offered me excellent practicum training opportunities to serve patients with different backgrounds from the universities, health agencies, clinics and other settings. I had great chance to broaden my knowledge in clinical psychotherapy. Not only did it reiterate the importance for me to aware of patient’s feeling in mind throughout the assessment, but it has also cultivated my adherence to the ethical standards of the profession, which I found it most valuable in shaping my attitude at work.

Sheffield Hallam University is proud to have a long-standing collaborative relationship with SCOPE, CityU, for the provision of educational programmes stretching back to 2004. We have established a strong local reputation based on our commitment to quality and student satisfaction. This new innovative programme allows students to study at either Masters or Doctoral level according to experience and interest. The programme team has a wealth of criminological and international experience, and will consist of an experienced and highly qualified academic team drawn from a highly regarded research centre in the UK supported by high quality local Hong Kong tutors.

Prof. Paul Senior
Programme Leader

The content of this programme is very practical and highly relevant to my work. In-class discussions led by experienced Professors from Wolverhampton and real case studies shared by them provided me with valuable insights. Instead of acting as a middleman conveying clients’ comments with the company’s legal consultant, I am now equipped with professional legal knowledge to discuss with clients directly terms in collaboration agreements. With enhancement in professionalism, I am now more efficient at work.

Mr. Lee Shiu Man, Simon
Graduate, LLM ICFL

The MSc study has provided some invaluable experience towards my personal and professional development. The content of the programme is very practical and keep abreast of the real global business, the process of the study has allowed me to reflect on my daily professional practice and allowed me to relate such practice to academic and international context.

The teaching staff from De Montfort University is very professional. They have shown empathy towards the needs of international students and have provided very good and timely academic guidance towards my study.

I will have no hesitation to recommend this programme to any potential candidates and I am sure they will enjoy the process as much as I did.

Mr. Tse Ka Wo, Gary

I want to express my sincere thanks to all lecturers and program leaders from University of Central Lancashire and SCOPE to organize such wonderful program to us. It is really good and practical course. I gain a lot of fire engineering theories such as risk assessment, engineering design, fire protection, solution and fire model application as well.

Mr. Alex Ng
Graduate, MSc Fire Safety Engineering
University of Central Lancashire

Taking this MEd programme has been a gorgeous experience for me. The friendly course tutors from the U.K. were so professional and inspiring. They guided us with lots of patience and positive encouragement along the way. I also enjoyed the many quality discussions and group work with other fellow course members, whose cosmopolitan backgrounds and varied experiences in the field of education have largely opened my eyes. The flexible course arrangements had made it possible for me, a mother with two kids and a full-time teaching job, to juggle quality learning into my tight schedule. I would surely recommend this programme to any educator who would love to gain a refreshed perspective to what they have been doing.

Doctorate in International Criminal Justice

Sheffield Hallam University

Sheffield Hallam University is one of the UK’s most progressive and innovative universities. We pride ourselves on making a difference - to our students, our staff and to the businesses we work with. Our research and business ideas, alongside our sought after graduates, contribute to the economic and social development of both our region and to the UK as a whole.

Our teaching is first-rate and is supported by our world-class applied research. Our students are a diverse group and benefit from a tailored approach that helps them to get the most from their studies. We offer top quality teaching and learning facilities and the ability to learn flexibly in a way that best suits their needs. For example, we are one of the UK’s leading universities in e-learning and offer a range of distance learning and part time courses as well as the more traditional full time courses.

Our industry partners choose Sheffield Hallam because of our flexible, business led approach and our high quality research, facilities and students. Our partners include Sony, BP, NHS, Network Rail, Cisco, SAP and Microsoft.

Our facilities are state-of-the-art and we have invested heavily in new technology to ensure that our technological capability matches the cutting-edge approach of our teaching. We are recognised as a Centre of Excellence for Teaching and Learning, e-learning and employability.

Sheffield Hallam plays a key role in the city and region in which it operates. We are located in both the heart of Sheffield and its leafy suburbs, and our students add to the vibrancy and diversity of the city.

Sheffield Hallam has a growing international portfolio across Europe, South-East Asia and in USA.

Master of Arts in International Criminal Justice

Programme code: 123-29610  Duration: 15 months

About the Programme
The programme aims to provide managers, policy makers and practitioners in the criminal justice systems, from law enforcement, judicial, correctional services and NGOs, with knowledge and understanding of criminal justice systems in a global context and how global changes in crime are mediated through each jurisdiction and enables an exchange to take place. The programme will:

- enhance the knowledge and understanding of criminal justice systems through critical reflection on theoretical and policy developments.
- broaden and deepen student knowledge and understanding of criminology and criminal justice within an international context.
- develop an ability to critically analyse and evaluate policy developments and transfer within a trans-national and global context.
- critically analyse the relationships between key stakeholders within criminal justice and understand and evaluate the leadership and governance issues that are associated with these relationships.
- develop a critical appreciation of criminological research methods and the role of criminal justice research and its application to practice and policy developments.

Programme Structure
The programme consists of four 30-credit taught modules and a 15,000-word dissertation:

2. Developing Criminological Research Methods
3. Comparative Criminal Justice and Criminology
4. Leadership and Governance in Criminal Justice

Entry
Candidates should have a degree with Second Class Honours or above preferably in a Social Science subject or equivalent qualification.

The Course Leader is allowed discretion to accept applicants who do not possess the above qualification. (s)he may assess the student’s suitability for entry onto the programme on the basis of personal interview to determine the applicant’s circumstances and commitment to study, his/her maturity and relevant experience, and any academic qualifications that the applicant may possess.

Those applicants who do have at least three years experience in an agency working in criminal justice would be eligible to seek transfer to the Doctorate in International Criminal Justice during their study or within five years of completing the Masters programme.

Special Features
1. Supported by the Hallam Centre for Community Justice, a leading criminal justice research centre in UK.
2. Taught alongside experienced local practitioners undertaking the Doctorate in International Criminal Justice (DICJ).
3. Articulate to DICJ with credit exemptions.
