Introduction from the Vice-Chancellor, Professor Sir Chris Husbands

The Chancellor, Governors and staff of Sheffield Hallam University join me in welcoming you, your families and friends to today's graduation ceremony. We are all delighted to celebrate your success.

Sheffield Hallam University and City University of Hong Kong School of Continuing and Professional Education have important things in common. We are both progressive and dynamic centres of learning. We are both committed to seeing our students succeed. We are both committed to making a difference in the world. Our partnership is built on the dedication of our staff and the enthusiasm of our students.

We share your pride in your achievements today. We are delighted to be able to share your success – we have a powerful commitment to helping every student achieve, both personally and academically.

I'm privileged to lead Sheffield Hallam University. A university whose expertise and innovation are nationally and internationally recognised, a university committed to preparing students for careers after their studies, a university determined to make a positive difference through outstanding research and excellent teaching.

This graduation ceremony marks the start of a new and lasting relationship between the University and you as alumni. You will be part of our alumni community, with access to a range of benefits, professional networks and ways in which you can support your University. Do keep in touch so that we can follow your careers.

Congratulations, again, on your achievements. Take a moment today to reflect on your studies with us at Sheffield Hallam, celebrate and look forward with confidence to a bright and prosperous future. On behalf of everyone at the University, I wish you every success and happiness.

Yours sincerely

Vice-Chancellor

School of Continuing and Professional Education, City University of Hong Kong

The School of Continuing and Professional Education of City University of Hong Kong (CityU SCOPE, the School) has been a pioneer and major provider of quality professional and life-long education for professional practice, retraining and self-development to align with community needs as well as social and technological changes. Those who are keen to upgrade and improve themselves, regardless of their learning needs, will find that CityU SCOPE's quality programmes facilitate their progression along the qualifications ladder.

Since 1992, the School has established partnerships with non-local universities to offer globally competitive programmes to nurture all-rounded graduates through well-articulated curriculum with strong emphasis on professional competence. Over the years, we have over 32,000 bachelor degree graduates, and the majority of them are now making significant contributions to various sectors of society.

This year, the School continues to offer a range of undergraduate and postgraduate programmes leading to non-local awards in various disciplines. The nine 3-year non-local degree programmes and eighteen non-local top-up degree programmes offered by CityU SCOPE have been successfully accredited by the Hong Kong Council for Accreditation of Academic and Vocational Qualifications (HKCAAVQ). The accredited status has not only assured the quality of these programmes but also the eligibility of our full-time students to apply for government grants and loans and to participate in relevant government internship and scholarship schemes. The academic qualifications of these programmes are also recognized by the Government of the HKSAR for civil service appointment.

We pride ourselves on the diversity of our programmes and the good standard of our graduates. With the concerted efforts of the dedicated and experienced teaching team of CityU SCOPE, together with our overseas partners, we will continue to provide you with an engaging and rewarding learning experience.

Sheffield Hallam University

Our mission is simple: we transform lives. We provide people with the opportunity to acquire the skills, knowledge and experience to succeed at whatever they choose to do.

Named University of the Year for Teaching Quality in 2020*, we are one of the most popular modern universities in the UK, with over 30,000 students from 120 countries.

Our research, teaching and partnerships are characterised by a focus on real world impact - addressing the health, cultural, economic and social challenges facing society today.

This applied focus informs our teaching, which includes professions such as engineering, science, nursing and business, as well as teacher education, art, law and paramedic practice. It makes our teaching in subjects such as mathematics, history, English and sociology, particularly distinctive, with a strong emphasis on preparing our graduates for success in employment.

This commitment drives our world-leading research across a broad spectrum of disciplines, in areas as diverse as science, sport, social science, arts and engineering. Our research excellence is ranked in the top five of all UK modern universities in the UK's most recent Research Excellence Framework.

We continue to shape Sheffield's skyline with major developments which place the University at the heart of the city and region.

The campus masterplan is a 25-year proposal to create a sustainable and flexible campus. The first phase will include new buildings for the Business School and social sciences, refurbishing the Students' Union building, known as The HUBS, creating a University Green and improving our current estate.

In January 2020, Great Britain's most successful female Paralympian, Dame Sarah Storey, helped us launch our £14 million Advanced Wellbeing Research Centre (AWRC). Situated at the heart of the Sheffield Olympic Legacy Park, it is the most advanced centre for researching physical activity in the world. The AWRC is dedicated to improving the health and wellbeing of people across the globe through innovations that help people move.

We are ambitious for our university, our students, our colleagues, our city, and our global partners. With exciting plans for the future and a renewed focus upon playing a leading role both globally and our own city region, the University is looking forward to an even brighter future as we work towards our vision to be the world's leading applied university.

Our history and place

Hallam's story is one of partnership and growth and begins in the reign of Queen Victoria with the establishment of the School of Design in 1843. This was a small school which delivered courses to encourage the skills which would lead to greater competitiveness and quality in industry.

It was the first institution of its kind in Sheffield and proved so popular that it moved to larger premises becoming the School of Art in 1850 and by 1859 had blossomed to over 1,000 students with more diversified courses in areas such as teaching and art. The School became a renowned hub for design and creativity and is now known as the Sheffield Institute of Arts.

A parallel story can be found in the history of the city's colleges of Education and Technology, which merged together with the School of Art over the period from 1969–1976 forming one of the UK's first polytechnics. University status was granted on 26th October 1992 establishing Sheffield Hallam University.

About Sheffield

Bordering the Peak District National Park and in the county of Yorkshire, Sheffield is one of the largest cities in the UK known worldwide as the centre of steel making for over a century.

There is plenty to see and do with two famous football clubs (Sheffield United and Sheffield Wednesday), the largest theatre complex outside London, countless parks and outdoor activities spread across seven hills. Sheffield is home to the film, the Full Monty, and music legends such as Pulp, Def Leppard, the Human League and the Arctic Monkeys. It is a city of festivals and making and Sheffield Hallam University continues to play its part in being at the heart of all these activities.

Academic dress

To 21st century graduates the traditional cap, gown and hood has come to symbolise a special day of achievement. Yet this symbolic outfit was once the everyday wear of Europe's scholars and has its origins in the very first medieval universities of Europe.

As fashions changed, church and university institutions retained their traditional styles of dress. So the robes on display today are the direct descendants of the everyday clothes of men and women in the Middle Ages.

Each university has its own distinctive version of this academic dress. Most universities keep their gowns the same colour but different styles are available for different levels of degrees such as bachelors, masters and doctorates as well as, in some cases, for new awards such as certificates, postgraduate diplomas and foundation degrees.

Sheffield Hallam's colours are burgundy and silver, but the Chancellor and Vice-Chancellor have their own distinctive styles of robe. The Chancellor's is scarlet and gold and the Vice-Chancellor's is black and silver. Other representatives of the University who attend graduation and sit on the platform wear the dress of the universities from which they graduated.
